Hens lay golden egg for local charity

■ Three Speckled Hens donates portion of proceeds to Jack's Helping Hand during antique show

The Three Speckled Hens Antique Show continued to showcase great antiques while raising funds for charity on the Central Coast.

A portion of the gate sales from each show are donated to charity, and last May, Three Speckled Hens chose to benefit local nonprofit Jack's Helping Hand.

A total of $1,200 was donated to Jack's Helping Hand from the last show, and the organizers were so inspired by the mission of the nonprofit, they have chosen to support it again for the upcoming show on Oct. 1 and 2 at the Paso Robles Event Center.

Since it was founded in 2004, Jack's Helping Hand, Inc. has established and provided community programs that enable and empower families, professionals and the broader community to meet the unique unmet physical, mental and medical needs of special children and adults who have not attained the age of 21.

Now in its sixth year, Three Speckled Hens Antiques and Old Stuff holds antique shows several times throughout the year. Carrie Millan, Kathy Marquart and Susi Fuller all share a love for antiques and formed the Three Speckled Hens to bring a fun and unique antique show to the Central Coast.

The October two day show hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the entry fee is $6 per person. Early Bird Entry is $10 per person on Saturday only from 9 to 10 a.m. One entry fee covers both days. For a schedule of shows and more information, visit www.threespeckledhens.com.

For more information about Jack's Helping Hand, please call 547-1914 or visit www.jackshelpinghand.org.
